FIRE/SAFETY/HEALTH PROCEDURAL INFORMATION

The primary document for conveying fire, safety and health procedures is the publication, Employee Safety Programs at Frostburg State University. A copy of this publication shall be revised and re-issued to every employee on a two year cycle. The most current version will be issued to every new employee within ten days of initial employment. Until revised versions are distributed, the Office of Human Resources will announce changes to procedures or new regulatory requirements in State Lines and supplemental safety bulletins.

Fire alarm procedures are included in the employee safety manual and the residence hall guide. They are also sent as an individual mailer at the start of each academic year.

Laboratory safety procedures are separately described in the Frostburg State University chemical hygiene plan.

Procedures for those with potential occupational exposure to blood or other human bodily fluids are described in the Frostburg State University blood borne pathogen plan.

Additional procedures may be developed and promulgated as needs or regulations dictate. Current procedures are subject to revision as specified by regulation, or upon the recommendation of the Health and Safety Committee and/or the Office of Human Resources.
